

BUSINESS MEN ON WRONG TRACK

Painting Optimistic Pictures is Unwise, Declares Forbes

CAUSES UNREST OF FARMERS

Sees Resultant Danger Also in Political World

(BY B. C. FORBES)
NEW YORK.—(Special).—Many business men and many friends of business are on the wrong track. Pessimism is so unpopular and optimism so popular in this wonderful land that business leaders and others feel that the best thing to do is to paint ultra-bright pictures of the present business position and of future.

This is an unwise course to follow at this time.

You must have noticed that almost every time you pick up a newspaper or a business periodical dazlingly optimistic headlines meet you. eye. Schwab is reported as predicting the biggest business ever; President Mitchell of the largest bank in America returns from Europe with a cheerful description of conditions there; the federal reserve board gives a glowing account of the boom in commerce and other Washington institutions and departments all indulge in enthusiastic superlatives over the lovely state of business affairs.

With what result?

Why, the farmers have become convinced that it is time for them to receive a more generous share of the wonderful business bounty. They accordingly demand prompt and sweeping reduction of railway rates, the setting aside of uncounted millions of money for them at cheap rates, and other action calculated to help agriculture and hurt business.

Many Washington politicians reason that, since business is booming so tremendously as it is now, as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar, no harm will be done if heavily increased taxes are levied upon surplus and profits and other tax measures conjured up to "compel" capital to pay a heavier share of the national burden.

Then, depend on it that before very long labor leaders are going to demand that the workers receive better participation in all this delightful prosperity they are constantly hearing and reading about.

Consumers of many varieties of merchandise are going to raise a serious howl when they are told they must pay increased prices for things they will protest that, since everything has been going along so swimmingly, there is no excuse for corporations and other suppliers of goods tagging on something more to the price, and the tendency will be to incite another "buyers' strike."

The popular notion in this country is that it always is best to be optimistic. Usually, it is well and wise to be optimistic, because the long, broad trend is for our young, rich, industrious country to go forward and upward.

But there are times when it is short-sighted and dangerous not to face unpleasant facts squarely and to acknowledge frankly the possibility of trouble.

This is such a time.

If I could feel for one moment that the business position were absolutely impregnable, capable of withstanding any and every conceivable assault, then I would say let the agrarian interests dictate slashing reductions in railway rates; let the farmers' bloc pass whatever drastic legislation it has a mind to; let Congress impose all sorts of additional tax burdens on the business world; and let currency and credit be manipulated any old way.

But as I have already stated in these articles, I do not believe that the business situation and the business outlook are fool-proof.

Frankly, I feel that the most circumspect action all round is called for if the quite remarkable improvement which has developed during recent months is not to be arrested.

To my mind, the very sharp re-escape in stock quotations has reflected, not merely the daring operations of professional stock market speculators, but the apprehension felt in the most influential circles over what may befall industry and business. To be more specific, I know that some of the wealthiest and longest-headed men in the financial world have been setting rid of large quantities of their security holdings.

The leading editorial in Saturday's issue of the "Railway Age" had this caption: "One Half of Year's Increases in Railway Stock Prices Wiped Out Since National Election."

I have spread before me on my desk at this moment clippings regarding the salient happenings of last week in the money market. In the security market, in foreign exchange, in commodity prices, in the wheat pit, on the cotton exchange, in the labor world, in congress and elsewhere at home as well as the principal events abroad.

But candidly, I cannot muster up any overflowing measure of enthusiasm over even the most bullish of statistics because I find my mind dwelling far more on what may happen than what is happening statistically.

In other words, I'm trying to look ahead and, looking ahead, I cannot but feel that we are moving towards dangers, which may not be avoided.

The surest way not to avoid them is for every one in the financial and business world to become gaudily and blindly optimistic.

Tabernacle Sidelights

Directly after Wednesday the evening tabernacle meeting and during the remainder of the week after the evening sermons, Mrs. Frances C. Allison will speak to the congregation and urge Christians to do more personal work.

"God had the world fixed up all right at one time, but fool man came along in his usual way and butted into affairs and ruined nearly everything," Dr. Biederwolf said Tuesday afternoon.

"I would much rather have God's word than all the opinions of those so-called intelligent men who criticize His work and world," the evangelist declared.

"Paul was caught up into Heaven and he could not explain the beauty of it, but people who have never been there seem to think they know all about it," Biederwolf declared.

"You had better be in hell with Jesus in you than in Heaven with the devil in you."

"This world is so small and insignificant it is a wonder that God has not forgotten it."

"We are so small that God could put us in a gnat's eye and not make it wink."

"There is going to be something going on in Heaven all the time."

"I am happy to see how much interest the Lima people are showing in the tabernacle meetings," said the evangelist. "I have never conducted a revival where more interest was shown than in this city."

STAMP SALE WILL AID NURSE FUND

$2,000 Expected From Disposal of Christmas Health Seals

Sale of Christmas health stamps which began Monday, promises to prove a greater success in Lima than ever before, Miss Katherine Reilly, sales chairman, 722 W. Market-st., declares.

Last year the sale of stamps for Christmas letters and packages passed the 120,000 mark in Lima. This year it is hoped to sell more than 200,000.

If this number is sold a $2,000 fund will be realized. Of this sum 80 per cent will be retained by Lima for paying nurses in the aid of families of tuberculosis patients and other health needs, Miss Reilly states.

The state fund receives 10 per cent and the national fund a like amount.

All of the money realized from sale of stamps goes to fight white plague, which causes thousands of deaths annually.

Sale of stamps is being carried in the postoffice and other public places. Nursing service, health education, nutrition work, care of the tuberculosis poor and health promotion among children is the object.

Purchase of Christmas seals will aid all these causes.

Mrs. J. B. Poling is general chairman in charge of the drive.

MANY ARE EXPECTED TO ATTEND SUPPER GIVEN FOR BUSINESS WOMEN

Great preparations are being made for the business and professional women's supper to be held at Trinity M. E. church Friday at 6 p. m.

Efforts are being made to reach every employed girl in Lima. Mrs. Allison and Miss Ray of the Biederwolf party will be present, speak and sing and after supper the business women will go in a body to the tabernacle.

The noon luncheons, which are held every Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon are well attended. It is stated, but even greater numbers are expected.

Mrs. Allison, one of the faculty of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago and considered to be one of the greatest Bible teachers in America, will give an inspirational talk to the girls. Miss Ray will give a talk.

All business women and employed girls are invited to these noon day luncheons and to the Friday night banquet.

CAMPAIGN ENTERS FOURTH WEEK

wouldn't be fit for heaven if you did set in.

"Second Heaven is a prepared place. I go to prepare a place for you."

(1) It's commodious. He's made it big enough. God's never embarrassed for the want of space. When He made the universe He didn't use the earth and its moon as a model. Why this earth's so small it's a wonder God hasn't forgotten He ever made it. You can take an auge and bore a hole into the sun and pour 1,200,000 earth's like this one into it and still have room for 4,900,000 moons to lie around it inside edge. You think that's big but some of the fixed stars, like Alpha Centauri for instance, are five times bigger than the sun. But Alpha Centauri isn't far away. The North Star is 14 times farther. When we get an interstellar aeroplane system in operation you can make the trip, paying 2 1-2 cents a mile it will cost you (billions of dollars) $6,250,000,000,000.00 to go making 100 miles an hour, which is dead easy for an airship, you could arrive at the union depot in 405,000,000 years.

But the North Star isn't far away. There are stars a thousand times farther.

Who conceived all this and brought it into existence? God! God! God! It makes me so warm under the collar to hear some little infidel disputing about God and finding fault with God's plan of salvation and other things that come out of the divine mind.

(2) Heaven is a beautiful place. God loves beauty or He wouldn't have put so much of it in this world. Who painted the butterfly's wing with all those gorgeous hues and thrills around the evening sun her drapery of a thousand living color. From what pastel were the colors mixed that gave the rose its blushing charm and touched the lily with its dreamy white? Who taught the raindrop to take a ray of light from heaven's shining orb and pencil it on the sky in one huge arch of bewitching elegance? God did it all. He made everything beautiful, and only sin has marred it and in heaven you'll find God's beauty at its best.

John got a glimpse of it one day from his lonely island and tried to tell us about it but the best he could do was to use a few symbols our poor little minds could understand, and he said, "The walls are of Jasper, the foundations are garnished with precious stones, every gate a pearl and the city is of pure gold."

"Every gate a pearl." Who doesn't go into ecstasy over the luster of a perfect pearl? I heard one day that Bully Banks & Blidde, of Philadelphia, carried a fine selection of them and I managed to find some one who could introduce me to the pearl connoisseur, that's what you call them, and I asked to see his finest pearl. He brought over and seemed surprised. "Oh," I said "I don't want to buy but I would just like to look at them." And he took me through some iron gates and he laid on the palm of his hand one pearl, about the size of a bullet and when I caught my breath, I said, "How much?" And he said, "Seven thousand dollars."

Oh, I can see it yet. I thought I was in a dream; the tint of it; the luster of it! Keep all the other precious stones but give me a pearl. I carry one with me just to look at—not like that one though. And oh, the wonderful thought that every gate is a pearl and one day it will swing open and admit you and me to the dazzling beauty within.

(3) And then heaven is a comfortable place. Wouldn't this be a grand old world if there weren't so many things in it that curse and blight and damn it? God might transfer His headquarters and bring His angels down if it wasn't for that. But in heaven all these things are known.

There won't be any grinding toil. No blasting furnaces to swell around in steel mill and iron works. No heavy burdens to carry on tired shoulders. No sweat shops where poor widows toil in the foul air and the dim light. There'll be no trouble in heaven. The first thing you do when you are born is to cry and the last thing you do when you die is to groan, but "Earth has no sorrow that heaven can't heal."

There'll be no sickness there; no suffering. Some of us when we suffer a little make such a fuss about it there's no living with us, but some people suffer all their lives through and live in a nursing home and it must be hard, but it will be over there. Listen, Rev. 21:4, "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death; neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain."

"And there shall be no more death." No gasping for breath and falling to get it. The cheeks will never turn ashen and eyes will never set in glassy stare. There will be no more crepe to hang on the door. The undertaker will not come and screw down the coffin and there will be no hearse to head the sad journey to the grave. There will be no heart-breaking moment when the coffin is lowered and the clouds fall down. What a place it must be!

The famous Victrola tone-quality distinguishes these new models

These new instruments are a delight to the eye, but more important still is the quality of their performance. That should be the first requisite in the purchase of a talking-machine. It is the one thing that comes before all else in the construction of the Victrola, and so, when in choosing a talking-machine for use in your home you select a Victrola, you get what you are entitled to get—a true musical instrument.

See and hear these new Victrolas at the store of any dealer in Victor products.

greatest surprise of all to find our selves there. That third is not true; it would be to doubt the word of God and to slander the sacrifice of Jesus Christ in our behalf. "I know in Whom I have believed and am persuaded" about this thing. I would be surprised if I found myself in hell. I've got my Lord's word about my heavenly inheritance, and when I get to heaven I don't expect to be surprised to find that Jesus has kept His word. But the other two surprises will be real enough. I tell you it's going to be a mighty select society up there. This earth wouldn't be such a bad place to live in—Lima wouldn't be so bad—if it weren't for some of the people we have to tolerate in Lima you have backbiters, and gossipers and meddlers in other people's business. In heaven you don't. In Lima you have the avaricious and the lewd and lustful. In heaven you don't. In Lima you have the sneering skeptic and godless, good-for-nothing infidel. In heaven you don't. In Lima you've got booze fighters and a lot of the dirty gang that sell the rotten stuff. In heaven the odor of the dirty stuff never defiles the nostrils. There are no liars; no thieves; no rogues; and we shall only forever.

CANADIAN HURT IN AUTO COLLISION

Thrown From Service Car Between Machines

Minto Noble, 24, Lemington, Ontario, was seriously injured at noon Tuesday when an automobile service car in which he was riding collided with another machine at market and McDonald-st.

Noble was rushed to City hospital in an ambulance. His head was injured, according to hospital attaches.

Noble was riding with his brother-in-law, Roy Rowe, employee of the Herrett tire service. Rowe was driving the service car.

As they approached the intersection, a touring car is said to have swerved into their path.

Noble was thrown from the car and crushed between the two machines.

The driver of the touring car, they say, disappeared, leaving his machine standing where it had been hit. Rowe took the license number. He reported it as 226-613, issued to George E. Funder, R. R. 2, Leipsic.

An attempt to locate the machine shortly after the accident, failed. Witnesses say a woman approached the car after the driver had left it, and drove it away.

Noble was visiting with his brother-in-law. He is a farmer, and married.

SOLAR REFINERY STILL BURNS

Damages to Approximate $5,000 Caused by Blaze

Damage of approximately $5,000 was caused early Monday night by fire which broke out in a still at the Solar Refinery.

One man, C. E. Keeling, 5144, a guard working on the huge tank suffered injuries when he jumped to safety after discovering the blaze. He will recover, it is stated.

The flames fed by highly inflammable oil, leaped high into the air and attracted thousands of people to the scene. Traffic in the vicinity of the Solar plant was jammed for more than an hour.

Difficulty was experienced by ambulances, fire wagons and police cars in reaching the fire.

Employees of the solar, notified by the screaming of the plant whistle, hurried to the refinery and aided in fighting the blaze. City firemen were not permitted to enter the grounds. Employees of the plant are trained to combat fires of such nature which require special attention.

The fire Monday night followed within a few months after a previous one, in which one man was burned to death and $15,000 damage entailed.

DELPHOS COMMITTEE SETS CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE AT $500 IN HEALTH CRUSADE

A Christmas seal on every package is the aim of the Delphos committee which has charge of distributing the penny stamps.

The seals should be as much a part of Christmas observance as other things, according to the committee, which is suggesting that the stamps be bought to add to attractiveness to packages and letters.

The committee selected by Miss Grace Kline has begun sale of the seals in the business and residence districts. Headquarters are being established in the postoffice, banks and stores.

It is aimed to sell $500 worth of the seals in Delphos. A total of 600,000 have been received by Dr. N. E. Brundage, city health commissioner. Twenty per cent of the receipts will be used for local purposes.

About $150 has so far been realized, it is stated.

EDUCATIONAL WEEK PLANS AT DELPHOS TAKE FORM OF LITERARY, MUSIC PROGRAM

Observance of Educational Week in St. John's high school, Delphos, will take the form of a literary program Thursday afternoon in the auditorium of the old school.

Members of the junior class will give the program, but all classes of the high school will be in attendance. English and Latin class members will be seen and heard in characterizations from the classics, and music will also be featured.

Valeria Thines, Robert Ulin, Denelda Flannigan, Ralph Birkmeyer, Richard Odenweller, Hubert Burger and John Mueller will enact a scene from Dickens' story "A Tale of Two Cities."

Various students will recite parts from the ode "One of the Intimations of Immortality" and another poem. Practically the entire class will have recitations from their lessons in Latin.

COLDER TONIGHT COLDER, MUCH

Much colder tonight, bordering on what might be termed a cold wave, is the prospect faced by the citizenry of this territory. And the same conditions may continue Wednesday, according to official forecasts.

Lulled into a blissful state of fancied security by continued mild weather thus far during the early winter season for the most part of the way, Ted was neglectful in the matter of laying in a supply of fuel against possibility of rigidity. He played the role of the Arkansas Traveler, who held to the view that when it was not raining the roof didn't need repainting and when it was raining hard he couldn't fix it.

It's something akin to procrastination, about which Dr. Biederwolf will preach tonight at the tabernacle, but with a different application, of course.

However, it's the same old story: most everyone finally pays for neglect.

LIMA POLICE EXONERATED IN TOLEDO FEDERAL COURT

The policemen were charged with having killed song birds in Lima during the first week of August, while attempting to eliminate nuisances caused by blackbirds.

Judge Killitts heard no evidence in the case. He declared the matter should never have been brought to his court.

SUIT FOR $20,000 IS OPENED

Beaver Dam Section Man Asks Damages of L. E. & W.

James H. Miller, Beaverdam section hand, may win $20,000 for an enforced ride in a gondola car, if the jury trying a personal injury suit instituted by him against the Lake Erie & Western Railroad company decides in his favor.

Trial of the action is scheduled to begin before a jury in Judge Fred C. Becker's court Wednesday. The action is brought under provisions of the federal employers' liability law.

Miller was shoveling rock out of a car near Beaverdam on September 10, 1921. He will seek to show that a switch engine hooked onto the car and wheeled it toward a siding in Beaverdam, to clear the east bound freight.

The car in which Miller was riding was ahead. The string of gondolas was shunted onto the siding at a 20-mile clip. The car struck other loaded cars on the track.

Miller will testify that he was hurled violently to the floor of the gondola, his right leg and ankle fractured, the bones in his right leg and ankle. He seeks $20,000 compensation for his injuries, which he represents to be of a permanent character.

An extra draft of jurors will be called if challenges exhaust the panel now serving.

O'Connor obtained a verdict for $39.50, the full amount claimed in Justice E. M. Botkin's court. Pelligrini carried the case to common pleas court. A jury was secured Tuesday noon. Judge Fred C. Becker is hearing the case.

FINGERPRINT RECORDS OF CROOKS TO BE PRESERVED BY POLICE AT DELPHOS

Classification of crooks incarcerated in Delphos city jail, by taking their fingerprints is assured, Patrolman Fred Boley having received notice Monday that he has completed a course in the U. S. School of Fingerprints, Chicago.

The course consists of practical lessons in taking, classifying and filing fingerprints according to the Henry method. Boley was highly recommended by E. A. Shook, president of the school.

He plans to keep a record of all persons confined in the jail, including hobos who apply for nightly lodging. Cooperation with the Lima force and other departments which utilize the fingerprint may also be worked out.

Delphos has heretofore had no organized filing system for criminal identification, but it is being recognized as a valuable asset in classifying crooks.

NEGATIVE WINS IN WAGE BATTLE

High School Senate Votes Against Minimum Compensation

Central High school was the scene of a hard fought forensic battle Monday night, when the school senate divided on the question of the adoption of the minimum wage scale by the governing body. The vote was 12-10 in favor of the negative.

It resolved, by the Senate of Lima Central High school that we oppose any law which would reduce the wages of teachers.

The result was in doubt until the vote was taken. The negative side was supported by Senators Rose and Welty. Senators Hawisher and Kaplan were their opponents.

In the opening address Senator Kaplan laid stress upon the fact that a minimum wage would reduce the liability of more strikes and dissatisfaction among the workmen. He also stated that the public desired such legislation and since it was "advisable and practicable," we should and will have a minimum wage scale adopted.

Senator Wise for the negative retorted with a dollar and cents proposition in which he stated that the expenses of an extra bureau to take care of the work would weigh heavily on the present financial burden.

Foreign laborers would receive as much as well trained and skilled American workmen, according to Wise.

Senator Hawisher in the second affirmative speech pointed out that much poverty would result if such a bill is kept down much longer. Child labor will also be under better control if this bill is passed, he said.

In the last speech of the evening Senator Welty declared that "employers as soon as such a bill is passed will immediately cut down wages and many more strikes will result." He also attacked Senator Hawisher's statements concerning poverty and crime in connection with the bill.

Two committees, one to make arrangements for the staging of an open debate and another to form the platform for a third party were appointed by the president, Russell Frey. Richard Cantigny and Fred Roberts are on the first body while Senators Shaeffer and Roberts comprise the second.

ONE KILLED WHEN AUTOS COLLIDE

Machine Overturns on Party; Mother and Child Injured

ST. MARYS — (Special) — R. A. Scherzinger, Springfield, was instantly killed near here and Mrs. August Reichart and her sixteen month old son were seriously injured when an automobile in which they were riding collided with another at a road intersection.

Two Catholic sisters in the other machine, which was driven by Tony Doll, escaped injury.

Scherzinger, his wife and a number of friends, came to visit with Rev. L. M. Berheger, pastor of the Osgood Catholic church. During the afternoon they went for a drive, it was then that the accident occurred.

The machine in which the victim was riding is said to have been sideswiped by the other which attempted to avert a collision. It turned over on its passengers. It took passersby fifteen minutes to extricate them.

Scherzinger was dead when removed from beneath the machine.

PHYSICIANS STRIVE TO REVIVE MAN'S MEMORY

KANSAS CITY — Physicians here today continued efforts to revive the fading memory of a man whom the police found last night wandering in the union station. He was unable to give his name or any account of himself, but was found to possess a remarkable familiarity with medicine and surgical instruments.

At the city hospital a bottle of medicine which he saw produced the first signs of mental alertness. Following that clue, physicians declared he possessed a marked ability to name medicines by scent, in a number of instances being able to tell compounds from which they were derived.

Chance suggestions elicited that he had submitted to an operation. He also mentioned Columbus, Ohio and the name of a surgeon in Rochester, Miss. In the overcoat he wore was written in ink "Lawler, September 1915." Suggestion of Lawler brought no response. He wore a fancy woven hair belt.

BUILDING COSTS MAY GO HIGHER

No Prospects of Reduction, Expert Tells Manufacturers

VINER SPEAKS HERE 5TH TIME

Chicago Economist Brings Spirit of Optimism

A city which can draw labor by providing homes and making it attractive for the workers will not suffer from shortage of men, Dr. Jacob Viner, Chicago economist, told Lima manufacturers and their guests at the semi-annual banquet Monday night at the Lima Club.

Building is a good thing, at the present time if the buildings are actually needed or will be needed, Dr. Viner said. Costs will be no lower and will probably be much higher, so nothing can be gained by waiting, he said.

Lack of workers will be felt in all lines during the next two or three years, Viner said in touching on prospective prosperity. This is largely due to the increased capacity of the factories of the nation.

At the present time capacity for employment is between five and 10 per cent greater than the supply of workers, he said. If depreciation of plant equipment is permitted, however, this condition will be rectified, he added.

Shutting out of immigration has resulted in a shortage of unskilled labor which will be felt for some time, he said. Both capital and labor are divided as to the expediency of the present legislation and there is little chance of a class division over the question, Viner said.

Farmers will gain under the new tariff while other classes will remain as before, Viner continued. Here protection is granted the farmer for the first time under the present law, Viner declared, however, that the present tariff is the worst ever enacted.

"It is like building a high stone wall and then placing a barbed wire on top of it," he said. "The Underwood tariff was the stone wall and the Fordney bill is the barbed wire," he said.

Sad days are in sight for the railroads, he declared. They are now suffering for their sins and unless they rise to the occasion and work out their own salvation, drastic action may be necessary.

A period of rising prices and prosperity for all will be seen during the next two or three or perhaps five years, Viner told the manufacturers. He also discussed the reasons for prosperity and the causes of depressions.

Prior to the address by Viner the manufacturers and their guests were entertained by J. Allen Grubb, "Five and Twenty Sailor Men," "Song of a Bridegroom," "An Old Man's Wisdom" and "Baby and I Go Sailing" were selections sung by him. Mrs. Grubb accompanied him.

This was the fifth time Dr. Viner has spoken in Lima and the more than 200 present showed that he is considered an authority on economic questions.

Illinois Yeast Plant Raided by 25 Bandits

EMPLOYEES ARE POWERLESS

Liquor Loaded on Five Trucks and Driven Away

PEORIA, Ill. — (Associated Press) — Officials investigating the theft of sixty barrels of whisky from the Liberty Yeast Corporation at Pekin, Ill., by twenty-five armed bandits today connected the raid with an unsuccessful one on the American distillery here November 21, last. It was said several of the Pekin robbers were identified as participants in the futile attempt here.

The yeast corporation formerly was the Globe Distillery and the liquor has been stored there since before the Volstead act went into effect.

The raid was made just as the night shift of employees went on duty. None of the robbers was masked. They were heavily armed and moved with military precision.

Some surrounded the plant while others entered and compelled the workers to put up their hands.

Twelve barrels of whisky were loaded on each of five trucks which were driven rapidly away over the hard roads toward Springfield.

Trace of them immediately was lost. It was reported one truck broke down five miles out of Pekin but a sheriff and posse in pursuit were unable to find it.

COVINGTON, Ky. — (United Press) — How a correspondence school "detective" turned bandit just for the sake of experience and adventure was related today by a youth registered as Lyle R. Horton, 18, Dayton, Ohio, held for grand jury action under $10,000 bond on a charge of attempted robbery.

The boy detective, who turned crook, slipped up when a prospective victim turned out to be a deputy sheriff. John Riegler, the deputy, "covered" Horton with his own weapon as the latter's gun failed to explode when the youth attempted to hold him up while he was driving his automobile over a lonely road.

Riegler then used a pair of handcuffs carried by Horton to shackle the would-be holdup man's wrists. Horton said he obtained a diploma from a St. Louis correspondence school. He bought a pair of handcuffs for $2.75 in Dayton, as well as a 75 cent special police badge and a magazine gun and then started on a hike to Jacksonville, Fla.

His decision to obtain "atmosphere" resulted in disaster.

IS DISILLUSIONED

Alleging Desertion, Mrs. Shaffer Seeks Divorce

Disillusioned by the alleged wild, wandering ways of Homer Shaffer, 206 S. Jackson-st., Audrey Shaffer, girl-wife, filed a petition asking a divorce in common pleas court Tuesday.

Since Shaffer left her to shift for herself nearly a year ago, the plaintiff has found shelter in home of friends in St. Main-st, she says.

The Shaffers were married in September, 1920. Nearly a year later Shaffer packed his grip and left home, vowing never to return, the plaintiff says.

Plaintiff also intimated that she was angered by the birth of their daughter, little Jaunette, a few days prior to his departure.

Shaffer's father and other persons persuaded him to return home, it is asserted.

But not for long. The defendant is said to have packed his grip and left the wife and child in February of the present year.

The wife alleges Shaffer spent his wages in riotous living and in entertaining "wild women." She has supported herself and child wholly since marriage, she alleges.

The plaintiff seeks to obtain temporary alimony, pending hearing of the case and permanent alimony and custody of little Juanita Marie, upon the final determination of the matter by the court.

WE FOR BEER IS PLANNED

In New Congress Will be Sincere

WINE ALSO WANTED

Wet Organization Sees
Shifting Sentiment

By HARRY B. HUNT
WASHINGTON (Special)—Four

light wines of from 12 to 20 per cent alcoholic content.

These are the demands now to be made of Congress by organized groups as a result of increased favor for modification of the Volstead act registered by voters in the recent congressional election.

Altho "light wines" are always mentioned in all modification proposals, the one thing the wets have in mind is their hearts and thoughts, however, is—beer. It springs from a belief that the expectation and demand of the rank and file who cast wet ballots on November 7 will be met.

Whether an effort will be made to obtain modification at the hands of the present Congress will be determined at a meeting of officials of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment late this month.

Some members believe it would be "good politics" to give the present Congress a chance to act on modification in the light of popular feeling, as they doubt that it will be passed at the congress-sional election. Others feel this is a "dry" measure, and will feel more kindly toward the measure, however much they might like an opportunity to drown their sorrows.

With the organization of the new

Congress in March, however, the light to overhaul and "liberalize"

the prohibition enforcement act will be under way immediately.

WET DEFEAT WET

VICTORY

The defeat of Andrew J. Volstead, father of the present enforcement act, in the biggest single aid to the wet program. Altho Volstead's successor is dry himself, Volstead's defeat removes him from the chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee and puts in his place Congressman

George B. Graham of Pennsylvania,

a wet.

This means that instead of pro-people to modify prohibition being brought in committee, the measure will be heard and reported to the House for action.

Gov. Edward I. Edwards, newly elected senator from New Jersey, is expected to jump into the forefront of the fight in the Senate. As an experienced aid and a counselor wise in essential maneuvering, Jim Reed of Missouri is counted on to be his chief assistant.

In the House, Gallivan of Massachusetts, Hill of Maryland, Tinkham of Massachusetts, McCloud of Michigan and Sabath of Illinois are looked on as probable leaders.

WANT AMENDMENT KILLED

"It doesn't really make any great difference whether the present Congress or the newly elected one passes a modification act," says G. V.

Hinckley, head of the Association

Against the Prohibition Amendment, who has directed the association's congressional drive. "What we are out to get, of course, is the repeal of the whole prohibition proposition.

"The results in the congressional election show the way the popular wind is blowing. Congress ought to be able to read the signs. If there is no modification, following the expression of the voters at this election, you may depend on it the voters will speak still more emphatically when they cast their votes two years from now—in 1934.

"Look out for a lot of the fellows who have been on the fence to fall off on the wet side.

"For years, members of Congress in close districts have been terrorized by the Anti-Saloon League. They realized that unless they walked the dry chalk line the league could go into their districts and defeat them. There was no organization which could effectively combat the league in its drives to 'get'

congressmen in close districts.

"As a result, these members have avoided votes whenever possible, or have reluctantly voted with the dries.

That was demonstrated in the vote

by which the Volstead act was passed over President Wilson's veto. Almost one-half the members in each house failed to vote. The bill was made law by the votes of an actual minority.

"We believe, however, that this association has now demonstrated that field. As a result, these hidden votes will now—in large part—come out in the open. With the avowed wet votes, we believe there will be more than enough of these to modify the present prohibition act."

FOREIGN TRADE EXPERTS GATHER AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND—Nearly the entire group of foreign trade experts conprising the executive staff of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, addressed the foreign trade conference of the Cleveland chamber of commerce, the first of its kind ever held in this country—here today. The conference was called principally to stimulate foreign trade. Morning and afternoon sessions were held. The morning session was devoted to addresses by heads of the regional division while brief discussions by heads of the industrial divisions of the bureau occupied the afternoon program. Grosvenor M. Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the bureau, emphasized the need for the formation of a sound foreign loan policy which would make trade possible with debtor nations.

is Made in Killing of Joe Lanus

BY EX-CONVICTS

Four Men and Women Are Held by Police

CHICAGO, (United Press) — A group of ex-convicts murdered Joe Lanus, wealthy automobile dealer, who was found shot to death in his garage, according to an alleged confession obtained by police today.

Four men and a woman were held pending further investigation of the case.

The alleged statement was made by Morris Borgosowski and named Larry Hefferman as the man who fired the shots which killed the automobile man.

All of those said to be involved were arrested.

Besides Hefferman and Borgosowski, those held were:

Otto Christensen, William Cramer, and Julia Hartnett.

Lanus was found dead with two bullet wounds in his back beside one of his automobiles. Police at first believed a woman was responsible for the shooting.

BOBBERY PLANNED

Borgosowski declared that the four men went to the garage on the night of the murder, planning to rob Lanus. Hefferman and Cramer entered the place and the other two remained outside. According to the alleged confession, Cramer ordered Lanus to hold up his hands, Lanus drew a gun and shot Cramer thru the arm. The bandit fell.

Lanus advanced and leaned over Cramer and Hefferman fired two shots into the automobile man's back, Borgosowski is alleged to have confessed.

The bandits fled to the apartment of Julia Hartnett, where Cramer's wounds were dressed.

Attempts to obtain confessions from other members of the gang had failed, police said. The men had long criminal records and re-

Relates How the Plant Juice Relieved Stomach, Liver and Kidneys

NOW EATS AND SLEEPS FINE

"I think your Plant Juice is just wonderful. It is making a new woman of me," declared Mrs. Clara Thomas, of 1423 South Greenleaf street, Lima, a well known and popular local lady. Mrs. Thomas made this statement during a conversation with The Plant Juice Man at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square, and continuing, she said:

"I had suffered for six years from kidney and liver trouble and my stomach was badly disordered. I was often sick and I frequently had spells of weakness. My stomach was in such bad condition that I was hardly able to get around. My appetite was poor, food did not digest right and I suffered from gas in my stomach. I couldn't sleep right and would have severe pains in my head and dizzy spells."

"I read about Plant Juice and started taking it and I will say that it has done wonders for me. I eat and sleep fine now. My liver and kidneys are improving right along and the swelling is gone from my feet and the pains have left my back. I do not have the dizzy spells anymore. I feel like working now and thank your Plant Juice is just wonderful!"

Said The Plant Juice Man: "Plant Juice seems to have a surprising effect upon the system in who have taken the medicine have said afterward that it seemed to act like magic on the stomach, liver and kidneys. They say headaches disappear, constipation is relieved, food begins to digest properly and, shortly, there is a feeling of new strength and health over the system in general."

The Plant Juice Man is at Hunter's drug store, 49 Public Square, Lima, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.

POLICE HELP PAY OWN SALARIES

Nearly $10,000 Fines Assessed Goes to Pay Fund

Members of the police department helped pay nearly $10,000 of their own salaries during the first 11 months of 1922, ending December 1.

Fines paid by offenders arrested by members of the department, assessed by Judge Emmett J. Jackson, of the criminal court total $9,247.45. There is still another month to go.

Many hundreds of dollars in fines levied on prisoners are unpaid. Some of this money may come in and swell the grand total for the year.

All of the money derived from criminal court this year has been credited to the public safety fund, according to information obtained at the city auditor's office.

In addition to this money, Justice Ernest M. Botkin, has turned over $1,007.10 to the city. The amount is credited to the general fund, and can be used for any purpose needed.

The sum represents the city's half of liquor fines, paid in Botkin's court.

An equal amount is turned over to the state. Ordinary fines in justice court are divided between the county and state, leaving the city out of it.

The city also may receive several hundred dollars from Justice W. H. Guyton's court, at the close of the year.

The grand total of money derived from fines for the year will not fall far short of $12,000, it is believed by officials.

COAL OPERATORS MEET TO DECIDE WAGE SCALE

CHICAGO — Union bituminous coal operators of the United States gathered here to decide on some method for negotiating a wage scale with the soft coal miners next January, today went into their second session after their first separate meeting before going into joint conference with the miners.

When today's session was called, according to spokesmen for the operators, no plan or method had been agreed upon for presentation in the joint conference opening tomorrow.

On the outcome of the joint conference depends to a great extent the possibility of another nationwide bituminous coal strike beginning in April, 1923, it was said. The operators and miners have presented divergent views of the method for negotiating the scale January 3. This resulted in temporary adjustment of the joint conference last November.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2. and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep their homes without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Take a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. When ever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyle's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation. Improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Adv.

AS SECOND J. J. HILL

City to Have New Outlets Northwest, Southeast

a national railroad power in the new $75,000,000 station at Cleveland, his home and the place from which he directs his transportation lines.

RISE IS RAPID

The story of Van Sweringen and his rise reads almost like a story by the famous Horatio Alger. Like many of the boys in the stories, this young man was born 41 years ago on a farm.

His parents were neither poor nor rich. At 14 he became a clerk in a Cleveland office. He held that job until 21. Then he and his brother, Mantis J., decided to enter the real estate business together.

One day they went out to Shaker Heights, a suburb of Cleveland, then a thinly wooded expanse of vacant land formerly occupied by a colony of Shakers.

"We became convinced that it could be made into a fine residence section," Van Sweringen tells.

In recent testimony before the Interstate Commerce Commission Van Sweringen told how the union station project grew out of that.

What Van Sweringen needed was capital. Financiers told him the land was too far from the city and besides that there were no street car lines.

He persuaded the Cleveland traction system to extend a line into the northern part of Shaker Heights. But the company refused to go into the southern part.

So Van Sweringen decided to build his own rapid transit line. He figured he might save time and money by acquiring the use of a railroad right of way into the city. The Nickel Plate seemed the best, but its management wouldn't make terms. So Van Sweringen purchased control of the road and its 518 miles of track at a cost of $5,500,000.

Van Sweringen testified before the Interstate Commerce Commission that his original plan was for a terminal station for his own rapid transit line. But the project gradually grew, one road after another becoming interested in it, until it assumed the form of a proposition involving at least $60,000,000.

IS A GO-GETTER

Van Sweringen is of the go-getter type. If obstacles are strewn in his path he fights all the harder.

Van Sweringen visions a thing and then plods on with that thing uppermost in his mind until he achieves it.

He is of medium build, with dark curling hair. He talks in a quiet, well-modulated voice. He is shy and shuns personal publicity.

His chief characteristic is his persuasiveness.

It has been said of him that he could take the most improbable of engineering problems and make it appear entirely plausible.

He never permits himself to get "riled." Nothing seems sharp enough to cause him to discard his smile or raise his voice.

Through his brother, Mantis J. Van Sweringen, has stood and fought shoulder to shoulder with him. But "O. P." is the name the public knows, the man with whom the public deals.

The next few years will tell whether or not the name of Van Sweringen will come to rank as high in railroad history as the name of Harriman or Hill.

CABLE SEEKS AN INVESTIGATION

Too Many Undesirable Aliens Get Into U. S., He Asserts

Secretary of Labor Davis will be asked by Representative Cable of Lima, member of the house immigration committee, to investigate the extent of congressional influence in permitting undesirable immigrants to enter the United States in violation of existing laws, Cable said Tuesday, according to advices from Washington.

The Ohioan has just returned from Ellis Island, where he investigated immigration conditions.

"I found," Cable said, "that 20 percent of all immigrants reaching New York are being rejected by the public health service for physical reasons and yet nine-tenths of those rejected are being admitted after appeals to Washington. In other words, 18 percent of the approximately 800,500 persons who are annually entitled to admission, are physically unfit. Congressional pressure applied in Washington is nullifying the efforts of the public health service."

Cable, after his investigation, says he is more determined than ever to press for a change in the three percent law, so that instead of a fixed numerical ratio, immigrants will be admitted provided they meet rigid physical and mental qualifications.

"My plan is that all persons who will presumably become splendid American citizens be admitted whether they number three hundred thousand or five hundred thousand. Our country can assimilate high class immigration, but there should be no admission for undesirables physically and mentally," he explained.

RUSH IN WAR SAVINGS EXCHANGE SHOWS LETUP

A letup in the crowds which have been besieging the war savings stamp windows at the postoffice, was seen Tuesday. For only a few minutes during the day was a line of patrons to be seen at any of the windows.

A fair proportion of the holders of the stamps are exchanging them for stamps of the 1928 issue, Postmaster A. E. Gale said Tuesday, but there is also a large number who are obtaining the cash.

If stamps are taken in exchange the transaction is completed at once, but where money is desired the holder will receive his check on or after January 1.

DELPHOS POLICE CHIEF TO HAVE PRIVATE PHONE

Chief of Police H. A. Kehres will have a private telephone installed in the Delphos City Building, for the first time in its history.

The chief's office, adjacent to the main lobby of the building, has long been unprovided with a telephone. Kehres found it necessary to use the one installed for ordinary complaints. Conversation in this manner is audible through the lower floor.

The chief desires more privacy in dealing with confidential matters.

EMBARGO LIFTED

Ban on Freight to Pennsylvania Points is Raised

Lifting of the Pennsylvania railroad freight embargo to points in the mid-east was announced at the Delphos headquarters of the company.

Shippers can now get merchandise as far as Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Oil City, Rochester and Erie, Pennsylvania, but beyond these cities freight congestion is still impeding progress. A tieup of railroads leading from those points is assigned as the reason. The R. & O. Lehigh Valley and other roads are still in the throes of one of the worst tieups in their history.

To Delphos shippers the news is bittersweet, for shortage of cars appears as a problem as grave as the embargo. Railroads are aiming only to supply all the demands of hay shippers; others must wait. Cars which were available if all rolling stock were open to all shippers cannot be used because of a recent order that western cars cannot be sent east. Western railroads are cornering everything available to transport crops, it is stated.

Much freight outside the limitations of the standard exceptions, including foodstuffs, medicines, food for live stock and other merchandise, had been awaiting shipment from Delphos, but with the partial lifting of the embargo much of it will be moved, according to Pennsylvania railroad officials.

A two-day lifting of the embargo, enabling all shippers to send out merchandise without restrictions, expired Monday.

HANDLING WIVES

YOU missed a good laugh by not seeing them. They got on the train together—a meek little “also ran” wife and her gruff, pink-cheeked giant of a know-it-all husband.

He didn't help her up the steps. To his credit, it must be admitted that he was carrying their heavy suitcase—tho maybe due to his absent-mindedness or the presence of a quart inside.

He lifted the suitcase to put it on the steel luggage rack overhead. And he grunted, that he knew what he was doing, when she suggested a fear that the heavy suitcase might break down the rack.

She started to insist, but he snapped, cutting her off.

So they settled in their day-coach seats. The little woman uncomfortably kept glancing up at the rack and unconsciously fingering her shoulder as if preparing it for a blow.

Again she ventured, “Dear, I'm afraid—”

“Mind your own business, it'll hold,” he growled.

Bang! The words were no sooner out of his mouth, than down came the suitcase. It struck squarely on his head, crushing his new derby hat.

The rest of the journey was pleasant for the other passengers.

WE watched the couple as the train sped on. It was easy to reconstruct the past, to picture them in their courting days.

She must have been a sweet little soul, dainty, graceful, gentle. Hard work had gnarled and twisted her hands. Worry had wrinkled and blanched her face. But her former glory still peeped timidly and sadly from her eyes.

As a wooing lover, we could picture him—tall, strong, assertive, the kind that appeals to so many sweet, shrinking women.

Of course, he had been one of the cads who mask their real nature, their inner viciousness, until they have won their brides.

Time was unmasking him, bringing out his real nature, just as it does with all of us. Not understanding the law of the Attraction of Opposites, his wife probably is bewildered at the change. Maybe she occasionally wonders if things might not have turned out better if she had married the other man.

IT is so easy to become thoughtless, after the first few months or years of married life. With the glamour gone and the romance dulled, thoughtlessness easily becomes neglect.

And the neglect too frequently grows into an indifference and lack of consideration, so that the husband without realizing it says things to his wife and commits discourtesies that he would not dream of trying in the presence of another woman.

Indifferent husbands and careless wives are trampling their roses. The secret of real wedded bliss is in a constant renewal of courting days. Marriage is a failure, the day we become plain husband or wife instead of sweethearts.

HELP FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

STATISTICS just announced by the government show a decided reduction in the number of deaths from tuberculosis in Ohio during the last few years. The number in 1919 was 6,539. In 1921, 5,270 died from this disease. Corresponding reductions in fatalities go back beyond 1919, demonstrating the effect of the concerted drive against the white plague.

Authorities declare the death rate still is far too high. They point out that by constant effort it can be cut to a very small percentage. This should interest every one in Lima. All have an opportunity to help in the fight. Purchase of Christmas seals will be a step in that direction.

ART

AMERICA now leads all other countries in creative art. So says Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, as he sails for a tour of Europe.

Saint-Gaudens says our art leadership is largely due to our more rapid recovery from the war, that we are returning to a condition of national sanity, whereas “all the new art in Europe is a manifestation of the spirit of unrest due to the war.” Bolshevism in politics is reflected in radicalism in art.

Then, too, many of Europe's best rising artists were killed by the enemy's bullets.

DETECTIVES

DURING crackmen burglarize London headquarters of Scotland Yard, world's most famous organization of detectives.

The burglars cart away many furs, coats, fancy umbrellas and pieces of jewelry from the Lost Property Office, where missing articles are held for identification by owners. A London newspaper with a nasty sense of humor hints that the “Yard” may take out insurance policies to protect personal property of the detectives.

This should get a chuckle out of American police, chafing under criticism.

Thus paving the way in history for Pringle's gas works. And about some fellow by the name of Edison, who was fond of Ben Franklin or the Saturday Evening Post, of the two which I now know not. To find there Sir George Easly, a liver wire was never on earth; and Frank Bentz, the thrifty home builder. Were arranging a collection for the Munny plant. And gave promise of my ante into the pot.

What with this and that, and so dark you know, did not get to the Tabernacle. So, home to finish “One of Ours,” and weep over the fate of Claude, a character sketch which pleased me much. So early to bed, with the porch light on.

CONJUGAL COMPLAINTS

Perhaps the most common of all conjugal complaints is that after several years of more or less conjugal happiness the wife begins to resemble her husband, or in sad cases, the husband begins to resemble his wife not only in interests and tastes, but in manner of behavior and even in appearance.

Whether this tendency of mates to acquire common likes and looks has any tangible bearing on the question of disease is debatable. There are plenty of instances of conjugal disease, that is, the simultaneous development or occurrence of a certain disease, say cancer or tuberculosis or diabetes or apoplexy, in man and wife, but as far as I can learn, the evidence of conjugalality is less convincing in these instances than in the instance of obesity. There are an extraordinary number of cases of conjugal obesity to be found, very sad cases indeed. True the disease does not invariably begin at precisely the same instant in man and wife in these deplorable cases of conjugal obesity; probably the husband makes a gesture toward incorporation first, as a rule, but the wife soon overtakes him and maintains a safe lead over him for the rest of the race.

Conjugal obesity is too familiar an actuality for anybody to doubt or question such a happening. If the influence of man over wife or of wife over husband has no causative relation here, then we must dismiss the whole question of conjugal disease as wholly fanciful.

For every instance of conjugal pneumonia, cholelithiasis, caracat or epilepsy you can report, I venture to say I can cite 10 instances of conjugal obesity. So if there is anything in the idea of conjugal complaints at all it is surely manifest in this most frequent of all such complaints.

My researches have convinced me that while some husbands go wrong all alone, still if the wife starts cultivating slackier flesh the husband will shortly begin emulating her example, for if there is anything most men dislike more than outright obesity it is being mistaken for their wives' little boys. This may not be good Leary psychology, yet I think there is a grain of truth in it. Of course the main reason for conjugal obesity is that the good cooks are so

POEMS YOU WILL ENJOY

By SHANNON BRADLEY
MUSIC

There's a lot of healthy pleasure in the lifting, swinging measure from a saxophone, a cello or a horn;

There's a pleasant titillation in the best of syncopation Which the staidest sort of people cannot scorn;

In the warbling of a birdie Or the tune of Bach and Verdi There's a beauty that has won a just repute.

But the music most in season When the water-pipes are freezin', Is the sound of coal that's rattling down the chute.

John McCormack's tenor singing Sets your spirits lightly winging, Padrowski leaves you starry-eyed and mute;

But when wintry winds are blaring There's no melody comparing

With the noise of steel as down the chute.

Sing in home or organum Play the fiddle or piano, Play the giddy concert fiddle.

You may stir our souls to But to ward off influenza There's no music like that on the chute.

There's no opera star per Who can make our hearts warmer Than the dusty-vinger (bushy brute),

With his art he can amaze When the magic time he Is the cattle of the co chute!

Susie Smart's Advice

Dear Miss Smart: I am writing you for a little advice. I met a young man about six years ago whom I learned to love. But my folks objected to my marrying him. I tried to forget him, but I could not. Since then he has been in and out of my mind. Do you think that if this young man and I were to get married, it would be a mistake? (1) What should a girl say if she is asked to marry? (2) Should she say yes or no? (3) What should a girl say if she is asked to marry? (4) Would it be a mistake to ask a friend to introduce her to a boy who is interested in her? (5) What should a girl say if she is asked to marry? (6) Should she say yes or no? (7) What should a girl say if she is asked to marry? IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter uric acid from the blood and pass it to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia water drink, which often readily relieves bladder irritation.

HANDLING WIVES

YOU missed a good laugh by not seeing them. They got on the train together—a meek little "also ran" wife and her gruff, pink-cheeked giant of a know-it-all husband.

He didn't help her up the steps. To his credit, it must be admitted that he was carrying their heavy suitcase—tho maybe due to his absent-mindedness or the presence of a quart inside.

He lifted the suitcase to put it on the steel luggage rack overhead. And he grunted, that he knew what he was doing, when she suggested a fear that the heavy suitcase might break down the rack.

She started to insist, but he snapped, cutting her off.

So they settled in their day-coach seats. The little woman uncomfortably kept glancing up at the rack and unconsciously fingering her shoulder as if preparing it for a blow.

Again she ventured, "Dear, I'm afraid—"

"Mind your own business, it'll hold," he growled.

Bang! The words were no sooner out of his mouth, than down came the suitcase. It struck squarely on his head, crushing his new derby hat.

The rest of the journey was pleasant for the other passengers.

WE watched the couple as the train sped on. It was easy to reconstruct the past, to picture them in their courting days.

She must have been a sweet little soul, dainty, graceful, gentle. Hard work had gnarled and twisted her hands. Worry had wrinkled and blanched her face. But her former glory still peeped timidly and sadly from her eyes.

As a wooing lover, we could picture him—tall, strong, assertive, the kind that appeals to so many sweet, shrinking women.

Of course, he had been one of the cads who mask their real nature, their inner viciousness, until they have won their brides.

Time was unmasking him, bringing out his real nature, just as it does with all of us. Not understanding the law of the Attraction of Opposites, his wife probably is bewildered at the change. Maybe she occasionally wonders if things might not have turned out better if she had married the other man.

IT is so easy to become thoughtless, after the first few months or years of married life. With the glamour gone and the romance dulled, thoughtlessness easily becomes neglect.

And the neglect too frequently grows into an indifference and lack of consideration, so that the husband without realizing it says things to his wife and commits discourtesies that he would not dream of trying in the presence of another woman.

Indifferent husbands and careless wives are trampling their roses. The secret of real wedded bliss is in a constant renewal of courting days. Marriage is a failure, the day we become plain husband or wife instead of sweethearts.

HELP FIGHT TUBERCULOSIS

STATISTICS just announced by the government show a decided reduction in the number of deaths from tuberculosis in Ohio during the last few years. The number in 1919 was 6,539. In 1921, 5,270 died from this disease. Corresponding reductions in fatalities go back beyond 1919, demonstrating the effect of the concerted drive against the white plague.

Authorities declare the death rate still is far too high. They point out that by constant effort it can be cut to a very small percentage. This should interest every one in Lima. All have an opportunity to help in the fight. Purchase of Christmas seals will be a step in that direction.

ART

AMERICA now leads all other countries in creative art. So says Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute, as he sails for a tour of Europe.

Saint-Gaudens says our art leadership is largely due to our more rapid recovery from the war, that we are returning to a condition of national sanity, whereas "all the new art in Europe is a manifestation of the spirit of unrest due to the war." Bolshevism in politics is reflected in radicalism in art.

Then, too, many of Europe's best rising artists were killed by the enemy's bullets.

DETECTIVES

ARLING, crackman burglarize London headquarters of Scotland Yard, world's most famous organization of detectives.

The burglars cart away many fur coats, fancy umbrellas and pieces of jewelry from the Lost Property Office, where missing articles are held for identification by owners. A London newspaper with a nasty sense of humor hints that the "Yard" may take out insurance policies to protect personal property of the detectives.

This should get a chuckle out of American police, chatting under criticism.

Picked up albeit by Prof. Harley Holmes, the musiquie expert, and jurist. He in his blue-devil taxied me to my office door. There, sat long until came a delegation of protest. And we discussed long over the problems confronting us all. The decision held in abeyance, but all merry and gay.

Out to pay some bills and protest to Cliff Wood about only six lumps and all slack in my last two tons of Pocohontas. And he will fix me up. So bot a ton of eggslump from Jamie Mackenzie for the nonce.

Lunched happily with a coterie of friends, the discourse all about lights. And they wanting a picture of Mose Mitchell with his lantern. Which Mose could ill afford. Harry Stirling, the electric light meter reader, told the history of the P.U. His tale being that a Scotchman in Ireland accidentally smelled gas coming from a lump of coal, and bottled it. Thus paving the way in history for Pringle's gas works. And about some fellow by the name of Edison, who was fond of Ben Franklin or the Saturday Evening Post of the two which I now know not. Discovers that by mixing things you could make electricity altho you couldn't see it. So, Harry Stirling said this was the ancestry of the Ohio Power company, that has just started a branch factory. Or will on Lizzie-st in the spring. Very interesting.

Saw Roy Dunn, the merchant, pleased with Saturday trading. Met Manager Byng, who if the truth were known, isn't all responsible for turning the switch at the Boul-Light works. But much discouraged albeit, am I over affairs public and private. Especially private. Will call on Billy Duffield, the best last resort man in this town. Always makes me feel brave and noble. It's a sad life without such as Billy.

Dined on a bit of the Thanksgiving turkey, which George has misplaced in the ice box. In the evening, played hide and go seek with the motor car lights. Until I reached the club. To find there Sir George Bayly, a liver wire was never on earth; and Frank Bonta, the thrifty home builder. Were arranging a collection for the Muni plant. And gave promise of my ante into the pot.

What with this and that, and so dark you know, did not get to the Tabernacle. So, home to finish "One of Ours," and weep over the fate of Claude, a character sketch which pleased me much. So early to bed, with the porch light on.

CONJUGAL COMPLAINTS

Perhaps the most common of all, eagerly snapped up by the good providers and fluffers do make slugs of us all. A bad symptom of incipient conjugal obesity is the difficulty Friend Husband has in persuading Friend Wife to take six miles of oxygen aloof with him of an afternoon or evening. She finds various handicaps and excuses. And in a little while the man can't persuade any woman to go out with him, probably couldn't go out if any woman would.

Seriously, you see, the notion of conjugal affections, of course you know what I mean, is a conjecture pure and simple. Aside from the communicable diseases which husband or wife may give a mate, and that doesn't include cancer, the only acceptable explanation for these occurrences is that some diseases, like cancer, are so common that they are bound to strike twice in the same family here and there.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Should a child 2 1/2 years of age wear pants, wool undersuits or cotton flannel?—Mrs. O. J. J.
Answer—Cotton flannel is one of the most hygienic materials for underwear, masquerading and smothering the skin, retaining perspiration and being an excellent conductor of heat. It offers little protection against sudden plunges into overheated rooms and out into the cold air. The more wool or silk and wool in the underclothing, and the less cotton the better.

Stress for Figures
I have been faithfully doing all of the New Brady's symphony exercises night and morning for the past six months, and the improvement in my figure is remarkable. Besides that, the exercises are a positive joy. Very many thanks for all your help.—Mrs. L. A. G.
Answer—This lady is probably trying to express how fine it feels to get rid of that fat feeling.

Sweet Stuff
Kindly inform us if too much sweet stuff will cause pimples and a good medicine or physic to cure them.—G. M.
Answer—No. Nor do I know a physic that will cure them. But send me another billet-doux, this time not forgetting a stamped self-addressed envelope and full and clear instructions for clearing up blackheads and pimples.

Genitor
I have noticed at different times in your column requests for birth control. Please send me the same reply you make to these requests.—F. E.
Answer—Profanity is not mallable. (Copyright, 1922)

My researches have convinced me that while some husbands go wrong all alone, still if the wife starts cultivating slacker flesh the husband will shortly begin emulating her example, for if there is anything most men dislike more than outright obesity it is being mistaken for their wives' little boys. This may not be good Leary psychology, yet I think there is a grain of truth in it. Of course the main reason for conjugal obesity is that the good cooks are so

MUSIC

There's a lot of healthy pleasure
In the fitting, eviging measure
From a symphony, a cello or a

There's a pleasant titillation
In the beat of symphonization
Which the staidest sort of people cannot scorn;

In the warbling of a birdie
Or the tones of Bach and Verdi
There's a beauty that has won a

But the music most in season
When the water-pipes are frozen,
Is the sound of coal that's rattling

John McCormack's tenor singing
Sets your spirits lightly winging,
Paderewski leaves you starry-eyed

But when wintry winds are blaring
There's no melody comparing

Sing in home or square,
Play the fiddle or piano,
Play the giddy concertina

You may stir our souls to fr

Susie Smart's Advice

Dear Miss Smart: I am writing you for a little advice. I met a young man about six years ago, whom I learned to love, but my folks objected to my marrying him. I tried to forget him but could not. Since then he has been true to me. Do you think that if this man and I don't know what to do, we are all right for a boy 16 years old to care for a girl several years older than he is? Should the girl allow the friendship to go on until he learned to love her? He looks much older than he is. (2) What should a girl say if a boy wants to accompany her home for an entertainment? (3) Would it be proper to ask a friend to introduce you to a boy you wish to meet?

THANK YOU MITE. THERE is only one thing for you to do and that is to successfully accomplish what you have already attempted—forget this young man. As long as he is in your thoughts you will be very unhappy and dissatisfied. When he was courting you, doubtless as most other young boys and men believe, he thought he could never love anyone else. You were both very young, probably, and as time progressed and this young man realized he would never be at liberty to marry you because of your parents' objections, he overcame his love for you.

Forget your disappointment now by helping other people and making their lives happier. Make your daily plans bigger, broader, original, creative and constructive.

(2) Perhaps a boy of 16 isn't responsible for the fact that he admires a girl several years older than himself, but it would be much nicer, if he must like a girl, to select one his own age or a little younger. And a girl of 16 must be very anxious for a "home" if she finds it necessary to center her interest in a young boy so much younger than herself. It is very strange, but some people do enjoy "robbing the cradle," you know.

(3) If she desires to accept the invitation, she should simply thank him and tell him she would be pleased to have him escort her home, or something to that effect. (4) Probably, in some cases.

Dear Miss Smart: Please give me the meanings of these names: (a) Anna and (b) Mary.

(a) Grace and (b) Bitter. Dear Miss Smart: Can you please tell me the names of the first settlements and by whom the following states were first settled: (a) Ohio, (b) New York, (c) Pennsylvania, and (d) Illinois. I am very anxious to receive this information.

A READER. (a) The first settlement in Ohio was Marietta and the settlers were Americans; (b) Manhattan Island by the Dutch, (c) Delaware River by the English and (d) Kaskaskia by the French.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES

LAMP SHADE

An attractive shade for the boudoir lamp may be made of ribbon upon which bits of other ribbon is applied in design.

BOOK HOLDER

A book holder of buckram or some other serviceable material makes a novel commutator who likes to read on the train. It has handles which slip easily over the arm and it may be more or less embroidered.

FOR COLD CREAM

Cold cream jars of porcelain are among the new importations for the dressing table. They take their decorative designs from the friezes of ancient Egypt and may, when emptied, be put to various other attractive uses.

MONOGRAMS

Of especial appeal to the business woman should be the new mannish handkerchief, 11 inches wide. The three-letter monogram in the corner is diamond shaped.

SPORTS VEILS

Now that wintry winds have begun to blow the sports veil is demonstrating its usefulness. It is hardly recognizable as such, being a scant half of a veil or even mesh coming just to the tip of the nose and being drawn close across the upper part of the face.

FOR FORMAL DRESS

Rhama brocade is one of the materials qualifying for the more formal type of dress. It is a serpentine crepe with a satin brocade motif and is 40 inches wide.

RIBBON SASHES

Ribbon sashes are seen in varied styles this season. Those finished with pichet edges of the same color, or of contrasting colors are frequently seen.

DENVER PLANS WINTER CARNIVAL FOR 1923

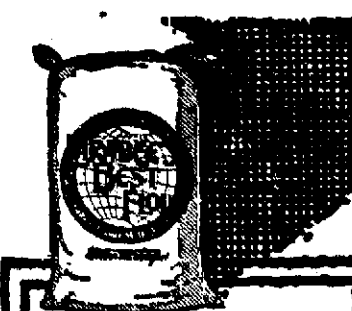

DENVER.—Plans for a great mid-winter carnival patterned after those held in northern cities, to be staged in Denver the early part of 1923, are under consideration by members of the Denver Rocky Mountain Ski club.

The club expects to extend its activities throughout the Rocky Mountain region, fostering organization of similar clubs in districts where mountains give chances for skiing. Tobogganing, skating and other winter sports are to be encouraged.

On each Sunday, when weather conditions permit of skiing, the various civic and social clubs of Denver will be invited to the clubhouse on Genesee mountain near Denver, where events will be given. In January, the annual amateur ski tournament, and in February the professional tournament will be held. The latter is attended by scores of nationally known ski riders.

Society News

LOVERS of literature as well as the large number of Lima residents who are unfailingly interested in the entertainments and concerts arranged under the auspices of the Women's Music club, are deeply concerned in the presentation of "The Book of Job" to be given next Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock at Memorial Hall.

"The Book of Job" which is a visualized poem, is being presented under the personal direction of Stuart Walker. The work consists of three parts including the prologue, the dramatic poem itself and the brief epilogue.

The greatness and prosperity of Job are revealed in the prologue, which also tells of Satan, whose duty it is to keep watch over men and test their souls; of God's consent that Satan test Job's faithfulness, of the calamities that in consequence fell upon Job, and of the arrival of Job's three friends, Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar. All of this is given in simple prose narrative.

Concerning "The Book of Job" the New York Herald writes: Job, the meekest man, has reached the stage. "The Book of Job" of Holy Writ, was presented in dramatic form at the first of two special afternoon performances by Stuart Walker in the Booth Theatre. In some ways it is the most novel production seen in recent years in a playhouse in Broadway. The words of the Bible, which tell of the triumph of a hard-pressed man through patience and belief in the Divine Justice, are sufficiently dramatic and are given with dignity beyond criticism and in artistic color.

At the present time, Stuart Walker and his company are in Cleveland. From there they will journey to Oberlin, where "The Book of Job" will be presented at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, after which the players will come to this city.

A Child's Plea Via Radio

BY ZOE BECKLEY

Myra and Barrett, still transfixed, stood looking into each other's eyes, a flood of misunderstanding between them. Their hands did not touch, their hearts beat painfully.

"Come," said Barrett at last, gently, leading the way to a sheltered corner of the deck where two steamer chairs stood close together.

"Come—and talk." But when they were settled neither found words easily.

"I hoped to see you before you sailed."

"I ran away," Myra's honesty, especially in crises, was impetuous. "I was afraid of you, Jack. You had promised not to sail on the 'Cedric' with me. But I was afraid, if you saw me again—"

"That I wouldn't keep my word! Well you see I did."

Myra shook her head. "Only partly. How did you find out I'd changed my sailing to this boat at the last minute?"

Barrett winced. "That's not fair. I didn't find out. I simply had to get away. I avoided the Cedric and caught this—for Holland."

She was still troubled, but now at the situation rather than with doubts of him.

"Forgive me, Jack. I might have known you'd keep a promise. But I was upset—"

Barrett suddenly covered the hand that lay on the chair-arm with his own.

"Myra's voice was little more than a breath, yet so intense that she quailed. "The inevitable! Let's face it. There's nothing for me—back there. No one cares. Myra—won't YOU wait me?"

She wet her lips. The pulse in her throat beat painfully.

"Jack—!" Her throat went husky; she tried again. "What can I say if you were free—?" She made a gesture more eloquent than words. "I shall be free."

Women's Missionary society of the First United Brethren church will meet with Mrs. Mary Van Natta, 957 W. North-st., Wednesday at 2 p. m.

A special program has been arranged for the occasion and all members are urged to attend.

Mrs. Fred Engle will give a Christmas reading, "Bea's Christmas Party," by Booth Tarkington. Miss Mary Schneider will favor with a vocal number.

Members of the Shakespeare Study club will meet at the public library Thursday at 2 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Wright, S. Cole-st., are home from Chicago, where they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Ewens.

Challenge Bridge club will meet with Mrs. W. S. Siferd, W. High-st., Wednesday afternoon.

Amapola club will meet with Mrs. H. E. Clapper, E. Albert-st., Wednesday afternoon.

Misses Eleanor Hawisher, Doris Cook and Christine Binkley returned to Ada to resume their studies at Ohio Northern University after spending the mid-semester and Thanksgiving vacation in this city with their parents.

HE TORE OPEN THE MESSAGE

"You must be very sure, Jack. Oh, don't misunderstand. You're not a shallow man. At this moment you want me. But I know—life, Jack, and what habit and association mean to a man who has been married for 19 years. Fatherhood has its roots. You don't realize—"

"I do. Nineteen years have brought me—here. No one cares, I tell you. Unless it's Alice, my daughter. But even she—well, you see, I'm here. My choice, after weighing everything, is—"

"Barrett! Bar-rett!" A deck steward came along, calling the name and slapping the blue envelope of a radio message in his hands.

Barrett stopped him, in uneasy wonder. He tore open the message. "Alice not home last night. No news. Searched everywhere. Frantic. Junior."

DELPHOS KIWANIS CLUB PLANS COMPLETION OF MUNICIPAL SWIM POOL

While the bulk of the work on the swimming pool in Delphos city park is completed, the remaining finishing touches, Kiwanis club members have been notified by the park committee. Heating pipes to keep the water at the right temperature will be installed at a cost of $200, a walk constructed around the tank and the bottom filled with sand.

Preservation of the natural beauty of the park, converting a part of it into a tourists' stopping place and installation of playground equipment are included in the aims of the club, which will raise funds this winter to defray these expenses.

Impossibility of Father Clark of St. Gerard's parish, Lima, to fill a speaking engagement Wednesday night at a booster meeting of the Delphos Knights of Columbus, owing to a sudden summons to Pittsburgh, has caused Dr. J. Clark, lecturer, to seek either Father Fate of Oak Harbor or Father Gabel, Hamlet. Both were formerly located at Delphos.

Arrangements for an initiatory event will be discussed at the meeting.

ALLEGED DESERTER OF WIFE, CHILD REMANDED

Harry Ayres, 24, Plymouth, Indiana, was remanded to the county jail Monday afternoon, after being quizzed by Judge Fred C. Butler regarding his alleged failure to support Mrs. Maude Ayres and their child, aged two.

Ayres was brought into court to be arraigned on the charge. He was indicted by the September grand jury, the bill being kept secret until he was placed in custody.

Because Ayres was unable to afford an attorney in his case, the arraignment was postponed. The court may appoint counsel, if Ayres is unable to obtain a legal advisor.

TRIUMPHS OF M. JONQUELLE

By MELVILLE DAVENSON POST

THE FORTUNE TELLER

It was an ancient diary in a faded leather cover. The writing was low with age. Monsieur Jonquille had been a paper was fragrant. We turned the pages slowly and with care, for the paper was fragrant. We turned the pages slowly and with care, for the paper was fragrant.

He wished to show me this old diary that had come down to him, from a branch of his mother's family in Virginia. The branch that had gone out with a King's Grant when Virginia was a crown colony. The Virginia ancestor Pendleton had been a justice of the Peace in Virginia, and a spinster daughter had written down some of the strange cases with which her father had been concerned. Monsieur Jonquille believed that these cases in their tragic details, and their inspirational deductions, handled equalled any of deductive time. The great library of the Faubourg St. Germain was furnished out from Paris. Monsieur Jonquille read by the fire, and I listened, returned as by some of the time to the Virginia of a vanished decade. The narrative of the diary follows:

It was a big sunny room. The long windows looked out on a formal garden, great beech trees and the bow of the river. Within it was a sort of library. There were bookcases built into the wall, to the height of a man's head, and at intervals between them, rising from the floor to the cornice of the shelves, were rows of mahogany drawers with glass knobs. There was also a big writing table.

It was the room of a traveler, a man of letters, a dreamer. On the table were an inkpot of carved jade, a penknife of ivory with gold butterflies set in; three bronze storks, with their backs together, held an exquisite Japanese crystal.

The room was in disorder—the drawers pulled out and the contents ransacked.

My father stood leaning against the casement of the window, looking out. The lawyer, Mr. Lewis, sat in a chair beside the table, his eyes on the violated room.

"Pendleton," he said, "I don't like this Englishman Gosford."

The words seemed to arouse my father out of the depths of some reflection, and he turned to the lawyer, Mr. Lewis.

"Gosford!" he echoed.

"He is behind this business, Pendleton," the lawyer, Mr. Lewis, went on.

"Mark my word! He comes here when Marshall is dying; he forces his way to the man's bed; he puts the servants out; he locks the door. Now, what business had this Englishman with Marshall on his deathbed? What business of a secretary so close that Marshall's son is barred out by a locked door?"

He paused and twisted the seal ring on his finger.

"When you and I came to visit the sick man, Gosford was always here, as though he kept a watch upon us, and when we left, he went always to this room to write his letters, as he said."

"And more than this, Pendleton; Marshall is hardly in his grave before Gosford writes me to inquire by what legal process the dead man's papers may be examined for a will. And it is Gosford who sends a negro riding, as if the devil were on the crupper, to summon me in the name of the Commonwealth of Virginia, to appear and examine into the circumstances of this burglary."

"I mistrust the man. He used to hang about Marshall in his life, upon some enterprise of secrecy; and now he takes possession and leadership in his affairs, and sets the man's son aside, in what right, Pendleton, does this adventurous Englishman feel himself secure?"

My father did not reply to Lewis's discourse. His comment was in another quarter.

"Here is young Marshall and Geeki," he said.

The lawyer rose and came over to the window.

Two persons were advancing from the direction of the stables—a tall, dark man, and a small, round, fat man.

"That is the Englishman Gosford," said the lawyer, Mr. Lewis.

"And the other is the negro boy who calls his assistant to a labor."

"My father turned about and looked at the man."

"Is your name Gosford?" he said in his cold, level voice.

"It is, sir," replied the Englishman. "Anthony Gosford."

"Well, Mr. Anthony Gosford," replied my father, "kindly close that door that you have opened."

Lewis plucked out his snuffbox and trumpeted in his many colored handkerchief to hide his laughter.

The Englishman sat down and put his fingers together with a judicial air.

"Sir," he began, "I am not advised that the purpose of a bequest is relevant, when the bequest is direct and unencumbered by the testator with any indicative words of trust for uses. This will bequeathes me a sum of money. I am not required by any provision of the law to show the reasons moving the testator. Doubtless, Mr. Peyton Marshall had reasons which he deemed excellent for this course, but they are, sir, entombed in the grave with him."

My father looked steadily at the man, but he did not seem to consider his explanation, nor to go any further on that line.

"Is there another who would know about this will?" he said.

"This effeminate son would know," replied Gosford, a sneer in the epithet, "but no other. Marshall wrote the testament in his own hand, without witnesses, as he had the legal right to do under the laws of Virginia. The lawyer," he added, "Mr. Lewis, will confirm me in the legality of that."

THE ROOM WAS IN DISORDER—DRAWERS PULLED OUT AND CONTENTS RANSACKED.

delicate boy, and a strange old man. The old man walked with a quick, jerky stride. It was the old country doctor Gaeki. And, unlike any other man of his profession, he would work as long and as carefully on the body of a horse as he would on the body of a man, snapping out his quaint oaths and in a stress of effort, as though he struggled with some invisible creature for its prey. The negroes used to say that the devil was afraid of Gaeki, and he might have been, if to disable a man or his horse were the devil's will. But I think, rather, the negroes, imagining the devil to fear what they feared themselves.

"Now, what could bring Gaeki here?" said Lewis.

"It was the horse that Gosford overheard in his race to you," replied my father. "I saw him stop in the road where the negro boy was leading the horse about, and then call young Marshall."

"It was no fault of young Marshall," Pendleton said the lawyer.

"But, also he is no match for Gosford. He is a dilettante. He paints little pictures after the fashion he learned in Paris, and he has no force or vigor in him. His father was a dreamer, a wanderer, one who loved the world and its frivolities, and the son takes that temperament, softened by his mother. He ought to have a guardian."

"He has one," replied my father. "A guardian!" repeated Lewis.

"What court has appointed a guardian for young Marshall?"

"A court," replied my father, "that does not sit under the authority of Virginia. The helpless, Lewis, in their youth and inexperience, are not wholly given over to the spoiler."

The boy they talked about was very young—under twenty, one would say. He was blue-eyed and fair-haired, with thin, delicate features, which showed good blood long inbred to the loss of vigor. He had the fine, open, generous face of one who takes the world as in a fairy story. But now there was care and anxiety in it, and a furtive shadow, as though the lad's dream of life had got some rude awakening.

At this moment the door behind my father and Lewis was thrown violently open, and a man entered. He was a person with the manner of a barrister, precise and dapper; he had a long, pink face, pale eyes, and a close-cropped beard that brought out the hard lines of his mouth. He bustled to the table, put down a sort of portfolio that held an inkpot, a writing-pad and pens, and drew up a chair like one about to take the minutes of a meeting.

And all the while he apologized for his delay. He had important letters to get off in the post, and to make sure, had carried them to the tavern himself.

"And now, sir, let us get about this business," he finished, like one who calls his assistant to a labor.

My father turned about and looked at the man.

"Is your name Gosford?" he said in his cold, level voice.

"It is, sir," replied the Englishman. "Anthony Gosford."

"Well, Mr. Anthony Gosford," replied my father, "kindly close that door that you have opened."

open; the others below were closed.

"Mr. Gosford," he said, "you would have some interest in this will, to know about it so precisely."

"And so I have," replied the man. "It left me a sum of money."

"A large sum?"

"A very large sum, sir," said my father. "For what purpose did Peyton Marshall bequeath you a large sum of money? You are no kin; nor was he in your debt."

The Englishman sat down and put his fingers together with a judicial air.

"Sir," he began, "I am not advised that the purpose of a bequest is relevant, when the bequest is direct and unencumbered by the testator with any indicative words of trust for uses. Green Wizard Asks Aid

By OLIVE ROBERTS HARTON

He had more orders than he could fill.

The Green Wizard lived in the fact it was he who had made the Green Shoes that Isaac and Nick always wore and which had taken them on such wonderful adventures. He had made them for the Fairy Queen who had given them to the Twins. He had made the Fairy Queen's wand also, and the magic automobile of which she was so fond.

He had made lots of other things besides. The magical shovels of the Brownies, and the magical umbrellas of the weatherman, and Mother Goose's broom, and some say—the I'm not sure—that he made Santa Claus' sleigh.

He got such a reputation at last for making magical things that he had more orders than he could fill, and finally, needing help, he sent to the Fairy Queen for advice.

"Why not get Nancy and Nick?" said she at once. "They're fine helpers."

The Green Wizard thumped his fist in his palm. "The very ticket!" he cried delightedly. "I'll go see them this minute. For they are smart and brave and aren't a bit afraid of my enemies."

"Your enemies!" exclaimed the good queen in surprise. "I didn't know you had any!"

"Lots!" sighed the Green Wizard, stroking his beard. "Twelve Toes and Eena Meena and Tricky Tricky and Hallow Hallo and the Sour Old Witch Who Lives Under the Water-Fall. Everything I make in my work-room they know about, then they try to get it. Hum ho! A wizard has a hard life."

NESSLER SIGNS TO MEET BOWEN IN BENEFIT SHOW

MAIN GO IS SET

Real battling—that's what should be on the card at the Police and Firemen's benefit boxing show at Memorial Hall Friday night.

Frankie Nessler has signed to meet Andy Bowen in the main go and the Cincinnati lightweight is anxious to get revenge for Bowen's decision over him in Fort Wayne a few weeks ago.

Bowen was signed to meet Jake Gross in the main event of Friday's program but because the broken digit on Jake's right hand prevents him from entering the ring, efforts were made to secure Nessler with favorable results.

According to the promoters of the affair, every battle on the card will be an exciting event and will lead up to a wonderful exhibition between Bowen and Nessler.

At Fort Wayne recently, Bowen outpointed Nessler in one of the fastest battles ever staged in the Indiana city and the Washington D. C. had looks like a sure corner, according to fans who have seen him in action several times.

Cincinnati fighting experts, however, think that the Ohio boxer can reverse the decision which Bowen holds and for that reason agree coming to Lima to see the battle.

80 CAGERS OUT AT CENTRAL

Eighty hunky athletes trotted into Central High gym yesterday when Coach Theibort called first practice for cage aspirants at the downtown school.

Mostly extreme who came out knew a little bit about basketball and this is expected to be a great help to the coach as he will be able to get regular practice started shortly. In former years it was necessary to spend much of the first two weeks in working out sessions. This year only two or three days will be needed for that purpose. Although only three lettermen are on the squad, Coach Theibort should lead one of the best teams in the future.

It is expected that Captain Seeley, Swisher and Taylor will be the big guns in the Central machine but several promising youngsters that were on the second team last year now are ready to step into their class shoes.

Last night's practice was used only to get a line on some of the material. Coach Theibort picked two squads and turned the first one over to Coach Theibort. Most everyone that came out showed up well in the preliminary practice and Coach Theibort believes that with the abundance of sophomores and junior material, Central can look ahead to some fine teams in the future.

For the first week the usual procedure of handling the ball, passing, and shooting baskets will be the main dish. Many of the fellows who turned out are football men and they are already in good shape. In order to give those aspiring for cage honors, an equal chance preliminary only will be indulged in so they can get in condition.

It has been decided that Coach Theibort will have charge of the varsity squad of 20 men while Coach Detrick will take the next 50 as reserves.

The varsity team has a fine schedule for this year and in fact the hardest ever arranged. If they are able to reel off wins from such teams as Akron West, Toledo Woodward, Springfield and Dayton Stivers they will be in high standing in state scholastic circles. The reserves will have a schedule with small towns around Lima such as Wapak, Leipsic and Columbus Grove.

With the fine schedule arranged, the good material on hand and the high interest in basketball being displayed by all of the students the cage sport is bound to be a great success.

SPORT CORES

Jersey City—Johnny Shugrue of Jersey City, claims the distinction of being the first to stop Willie Jackson of the Bronx in the latter's career as a lightweight. Jackson was knocked to the mat once in the eighth, again in the ninth. As he was floored once more in the tenth, the bell rang at the count of six and the fight was called.

Troy, N. Y.—Joe Burton of Jackson, Mich., was awarded the decision over Al McKee of Brooklyn in 12 rounds last night.

Memphis, Tenn.—Kid Dugan, Memphis welterweight, gained an eight round decision over Al Knowles, New Orleans, here last night.

New York—The first casualties of the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden occurred last night during the 9:30 o'clock sprints and spilled five of the other contestants in a heap at the bottom of the track. None were dangerously injured, although Lorenz was cut so badly on the arm that he had to retire from the race.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Charlie Padlock, speed king, has announced that he will not hang up his shoes for a while yet and will be on hand when the spring season opens. He has enrolled in the University of Southern California, which seems to refute the rumor that he was planning to accept an invitation to compete in some games in New Zealand.

CAPTAIN OF INDIANA'S ELEVEN HAS MADE GREAT RECORDS ON GRIDIRON

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Boring thru the line of scrimmage is mere play compared with fighting Hungarians, says Frank Hanny, captain of the Indiana University eleven, who spent several months on the Duane front with the Italians during the World War. He wears the Italian cross awarded for meritorious services in the war and has been dubbed "The Duke" by his teammates.

Back home, at Aurora, Ill., Hanny is known as a member of the famous Aurora high school football eleven which went east in 1915 and lost to New York, 13 to 12 for the high school championship of the United States. During that year and the year before the opponents of Hanny's eleven scored only 20 points as compared to 700 for the Aurora team.

Frank came to Indiana University the year before the war and easily made the freshman team. He came back to Indiana in 1920 and that year performed the remarkable feat of allowing only four yards to be gained around him by an opponent the entire season.

Last year he was unfortunate in receiving a severe injury to his shoulder in the Harvard game, which kept him out of most of the remaining contests. After a summer driving spikes in the west with a railroad section gang, Frank is back as healthy as ever and on the verge of leading the team to a national championship. He weighs 192, is six feet tall and is 24 years old.

In the Indiana-Wisconsin game this fall Hanny performed the remarkable feat of carrying the ball for Indiana on nine successive line plunges with a net gain of 35 yards in three first downs. In the same game Hanny led the seventh time this season tackled a runner returning his punt.

There has also been some talk of a football "Landis" for the east, but the coaches in general scoff at the idea as being unnecessary. They point out that football is not a professional sport, that it is not threatened by commercialism and that faculty hands are the best for its administration.

Nothing seems to have been wrong with football this season. As long as there is rivalry between colleges there will be talk that So-and-So is having his expenses paid at Such-and-such and as long as there are old grads there will be some players getting a helping hand, but it is not dangerous enough to be a cause for alarm.

Big universities like Harvard, Yale, and Princeton, where the proceeds of football foot the bills for all athletics, hardly will encourage the idea of a conference. They are big enough to select their own opponents and they are big enough to demand only good drawing cards.

With a conference idea prevailing, any of the big eleven would have to book two or three games a year with opponents that wouldn't draw a handful of spectators. That's an item, too!

With a conference idea prevailing, any of the big eleven would have to book two or three games a year with opponents that wouldn't draw a handful of spectators. That's an item, too!

Bill Roper, the Princeton football mentor, says it is not necessary. Yale, without taking an attitude against the conference, says that Yale would be reluctant to join such an organization.

However, at New Haven, it is intimated that the new football agreement entered into by Yale, Harvard and Princeton may be the foundation of a conference of some kind in the future.

The big difficulty in organizing an eastern conference would be in defining what constituted the eastern section. While there are ten members of the Western Conference, the territory represented is much smaller than the area now generally regarded as the east.

Pennsylvania, geographically, is not exactly east, but it is considered such from a football standpoint. Georgetown is ranked both in eastern and southern circles and West Virginia is even regarded as an eastern team.

Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell, Dartmouth, Pennsylvania, Columbia College, Penn State, Pittsburgh, Washington and Jefferson, Lafayette, Lehigh, Rutgers, New York University, Syracuse, Army, Navy, Carnegie Tech, Boston College, Fordham, Holy Cross, Brown, Swarthmore, and several other universities would be eligible for membership.

Try to pick ten out of that bunch and you'd have a nice little war on your hands.

CAPTAIN FRANK HANNY

MINORS START SESSION

(By HENRY L. FARRELL)

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — With nothing particular to do, the guiding minds of the "bush leagues" went into session here today.

Owners, managers and share holders of practically every minor league baseball club in the country were gathered for the annual session of the National Association.

With the draft question announced as permanently shelved with no issues to war over, the annual convocation of the "little fellows" turned itself almost into a market of players. Fringing the gatherings of minor magnates were the high agents of the major leagues, ready to sell rookies or hear the bottom prices on the prize products of last year's crops on the small time.

There was talk of many deals but confirmation was lacking, due to the tendency of the delegates to hold off the hot stuff until the last minute.

The Cleveland Indians agreed to pay $75,000 to the Milwaukee club of the American Association for the services of Glenn Matt, a young catcher sent to the association from the Philadelphia Athletics according to a report from a very reliable source.

While it has not been officially announced, it was also learned that Frank Shaughnessy, football coach of McGill University, Canada, had been named manager of the Syracuse International League Club. Jack Dunn, manager of the Baltimore International League champions, was due to arrive today. Three major clubs were waiting to swoop down on him to talk business over Joe Boleyn, his star shortstop.

Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, said he was ready to make an offer for him and the White Sox also would like to have him but the St. Louis Cards were said to have the inside track.

Commissioner K. M. Landis was on the scene early today. Saying that he was present merely as a spectator, he would not consent to an interview. He said he had not come to the meeting to make a speech but that he would talk if anyone wanted to hear him. He would not comment about the gauntlet that Ban Johnson, president of the American League seems to be tossing down in front of him.

While Landis would say nothing about Johnson's activities, Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates was no reticent.

"No matter what Johnson says, the major league season is going to open next year on April 17. Johnson says he wants it on April 11, but we have the agreement in writing," Dreyfuss said.

The Pittsburgh manager has been making out the schedule for years. Nothing but routine business was on the card today. Calling the roll was expected to take up most of the session.

American League Champions Win Fielding Honors

In a general sense, fielding in 1922 in the American League was not of the high character that obtained during many past seasons. However, individual exploits of the most sensational description were so frequent as to be almost commonplace. These brilliant feats were greeted with generous approval and they served to offset the defects in play that were evident to all students of the game.

The champions tied in fielding percentage with Chicago with the fine average of .976. In fact, New York was first for exceptional outfield position the daily performances, individual and team play ranked from good to excellent. The White Sox in their second year of rebuilding were much better in the field but still lack skill in several places. Detroit owes its third place position to the tremendous improvement attained in two infield positions while Philadelphia and St. Louis displayed stars in stations that had been guarded in mediocre fashion in recent previous years.

Taking the various positions in detail it may be said that the most brilliant work was done around first base. The catching also was most excellent but the work of the outfielders as a whole was not equal to that of some former years, the individuals here and there displayed amazing skill thruout the season. The weak spot in the league is at third base where mediocre ability has the doubly hard task daily, of knocking down drives that the great players of previous years rarely encountered.

An unprecedented number of double and triple plays were sparkling features thruout the season. Washington set a record with 168 double and one triple play. St. Louis beat all former counts with 158, while Cleveland, Chicago and Boston all executed more than 140 two play killings. Chicago and Boston each made two triple plays and Cleveland, Washington and Philadelphia one each.

Probably the best individual record was those of first baseman Sisler who made 125 assists in 141 games, first baseman Pipp with 1,667 put outs, second baseman

Harris with 982 chances accepted, only twenty-six less than the record established by Lajoie in 1908 and catcher Schalk, who in his tenth full year of service caught 142 games, led in put outs for catchers with 591, partly because of his uncommon skill in getting fouls, and made 150 assists, also a greater number than that of any other catcher in the league.

Wallie Pipp took part in the most games of any initial sacker and made a per cent of .993. Eddie Collins and Sebeor, of Philadelphia were also tied for honors at second with a standing of .976. At third, McCall, of the Yankees stands alone with .983. His closest competitor is McClellan, of Chicago, who made an average of .971.

At shortstop, Scott, of New York, stands alone at the head of the list with a percentage of .966. He played in 154 games, made 302 putouts, 538 assists, and 30 errors. Shorten, St. Louis, Goebel, Washington, Milan, Washington, and Summa, Cleveland, made perfect averages in the outfield, although none of the four took part in more than 31 games. Strunk of Chicago, takes second place with an average of .989 for 75 games, and honors for the outfield go to Tris Speaker, who played in 110 games, made 285 putouts, 13 assists and 5 errors.

Ray Shaik captured the fielding honors among the catchers, playing in 142 games with 591 putouts, 150 assists, and 8 errors with an average of .989. Sixteen hurlers, made perfect averages during the past season, although Johnson, of Washington, holds the edge on account of the number of games played. He played 41 games, made 11 putouts, 66 assists and was not credited with an error during the year.

Comparison of Scores Favor Michigan Eleven Over Iowa

MICHIGAN and Iowa finished the "Big Ten" season tied for first place in the championship. Since Iowa was not defeated during the past season, Iowa, according to precedent, will continue to hold the championship.

Since both Michigan and Iowa met three of the same teams in the "Big Ten," a comparison of the scores of those games are of interest.

Michigan..... 15	Ohio..... 0	Iowa..... 12	Ohio..... 9
Michigan..... 14	Illinois..... 0	Iowa..... 8	Illinois..... 7
Michigan..... 26	Minnesota..... 7	Iowa..... 28	Minnesota..... 14
Michigan..... 59	Opponents..... 7	Iowa..... 48	Opponents..... 30

While comparative scores do not mean a great deal in modern football, the Michigan-Iowa scores against Illinois, Minnesota and Ohio State show to the advantage of Michigan.

MANY TEAMS WANT TO PLAY DELPHOS

Athletic authorities of South high school, Lima, have requested a date with Jefferson high, Delphos, for the 1923 football schedule, but it may be impossible for Delphos to arrange a game, according to intimation given out in Delphos Monday.

The unenviable record chalked up by Jefferson this season is creating interest in scholastic circles thruout the state, according to invitations for games that are pouring in. The Red and White will not lack for material in making up its next grid program.

Ten games probably will be entered on the '23 schedule. Nine were on this year's program, Jefferson winning six of them.

The only definite booking made so far by athletic officials of the Delphos high school is with Van Wert.

DEMILLE TO PHOTODRAMATIZE COMMANDMENTS

The Western Washington Ten Commandments are to be photo dramatized. Cecil DeMille intends to make the biblical instructions film he has yet to make. MacPherson is now working on the scenario. Camera work will start April 1.

DeMille recently offered $1,000 for a new idea for a photoplay. He submitted the idea of filming the Ten Commandments. Each was awarded $1,000.

"This is a great demonstration of the value of appealing directly to the public opinion for ideas," DeMille said. "This tremendous theme has been suggested and hidden in the minds of the people and we have been justified a thousand-fold in the means used to draw it out."

Doubtless modern characters will tell the story that DeMille will tell from the Ten Commandments.

Stuart Walker Players to Present "Book of Job"

ANNOUNCEMENT made by the Women's Music Club that Stuart Walker and his players will appear here next Monday evening at Memorial Hall, is greeted with deep enthusiasm by followers of the drama and those who have previously witnessed the remarkable performance of these versatile dramatists.

"The Book of Job," a visualized poem which Mr. Walker has chosen for the Lima appearance, consists of three important parts—the prologue, the dramatic poem itself, and the brief epilogue.

The performance will be given in this city at Memorial Hall, on the evening of Monday, December 11th, under the auspices of the Women's Music Club.

Keith Vaudeville Interesting This Week

W HILE exact billing of each of the Keith acts, to be shown at the Faurot beginning on Thursday, is not at hand, advance notices from booking offices promise a wealth of valuable material for patrons of the Opera House.

A feature of the bill will be a charming musical novelty, presented by five artists, elaborately staged and costumed. There is also a delightful comedy sketch, which in the parlance of vaudeville is described elsewhere as a perfect "wow."

A combination of hilarious comedy and musical numbers forms another unique bit on the program, with a miniature musical comedy, featuring a chubby, happy comedian and a bevy of pretty girls.

Last but not least, a versatile brother and sister will appear in what they call "a pleasant surprise." So, a pleasant surprise it have to be. However, they do say the act is decidedly clever and quite unusual.

THEATRE DIRECTORY

AT THE NEW ORPHEUM:—Rose Royal Midgits continue to break all records at the New Orpheum theatre. This wonderful company of twenty-five tiny people, assembled from all Europe, features extraordinary talent, with musicians, acrobats and comedians. The engagement is for this week only.

AT THE QUILNA:—Peter B. Kyne's story "The Pride

He has announced no plan of action as yet but that seems to be the thing expected from him.

It seems that a story told by modern characters is the only logical course. It is, at least, the most impressive course. Many teachers of the Bible have been ineffective because they dwell too much in the past tense. Application of moral principles has been upon men and women who lived several thousand years ago rather than upon those whom the teachers have tried to reach.

Among those who won awards for submitting the Ten Commandments idea to DeMille are F. G. Nelson, Lansing, Mich.; Mayle Michael, Province, A. I.; Mrs. Peter Rasmussen, Long Beach, Cal.; H. J. Bratt, Los Angeles, Cal.; E. H. Peck, Hemperia, Cal.; and Mrs. Emily Hulise, of Hempstead, L. I., and Los Angeles, Cal.

Richly colored and impressive stage settings, well conceived lighting effects and admirable incidental music are all combined to make the attraction perfect in execution.

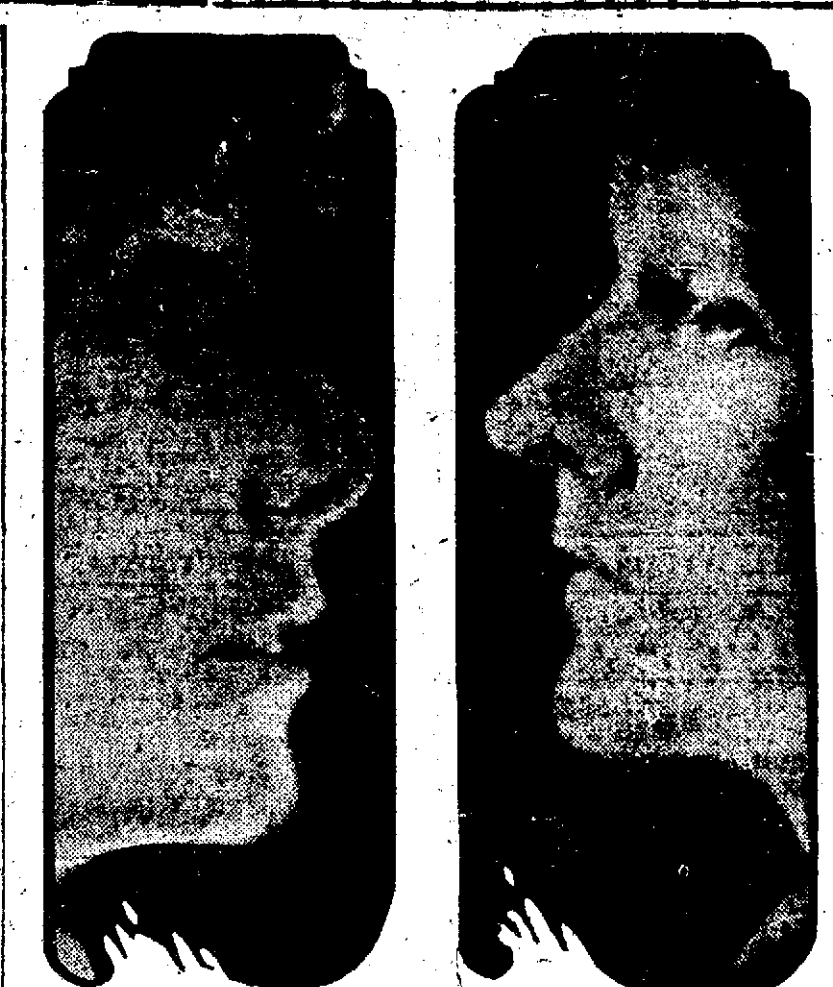

The Stuart Walker Players are of a calibre that one rarely meets. Quite removed from the flavor of routine professionalism, yet free from every vestige of the "professional amateur," each player has a natural talent of high degree, and under the personal direction of Mr. Walker, their performance of "The Book of Job," is one of marked beauty.

The performance will be given in this city at Memorial Hall, on the evening of Monday, December 11th, under the auspices of the Women's Music Club.
